As a children’s book illustrator Liz loves to engage children of all ages in drawing, storytelling, mark-making and generally being creative. She brings excitement and fun to making picture books and aims to banish the phrase “I can’t draw” from the lips of children and teachers alike.

Originally from England, Liz is now published by Penguin & Walker Books in Australia. Since moving to Newcastle, Liz has also facilitated Big Draw events and made many illustrated maps of Newcastle. She regularly reviews picture books for CBCA Reading Time and is an Ambassador for Books in Homes.

'Howzat' follows children's games of backyard cricket and is full of bustling cities worldwide.

'Lake Eyre' takes a detailed look at the texture and wildlife of The Australian Outback.

'One Photo' describes aspects of loss and love when a father is diagnosed with Early Onset Alzheimer’s disease
